Foreword

When school began in September, everyone settled to the usual routine of classes and books, but that wasn't all. We made new friends, joined clubs, participated in assemblies, and gained bits of knowledge, all of which played an important part in developing our attitude, and ideals.

This was the year that satellites played an important role in the national defense question, the year that the Yankees lost the series, class officers were elected and the 1958 edition of CONGRESS came out.

The 1958 CONGRESS Staff hopes that this Book will be a symbol of cherished memories in Olean High School.

During the year 1957-1958, the Olean Chapter of the National Honor Society has been very active. Even before the induction ceremony, the older members were engaged in various money-making projects, such as check rooms and fudge sales.

In the fall 20 new members were taken in. The group, as a whole, sold candy in order to supplement our Foreign Exchange Student Fund.

The Olean chapter sponsored a new society in Shinglehouse. They also attended a convention held at Clarence on May 10.

The annual banquet for the former and present members took place in June.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Dear Seniors:

Your graduation day is one of those few really important days in your life that you never forget. Because of willingness and earnest desire to learn, this accomplishment is yours alone. The completion of your high school education and graduation could not be given to you, or bought by you, but more important, could only be earned by you.

On this day of your graduation, I congratulate you and wish you success, health, and happiness in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

R. S. Adams, President
Board of Education

My Dear Seniors:

The statement that these are unusual times has been applied truthfully by every generation. For although the basic problems that challenge man's attention have been essentially the same since the days of Plato, we find that the search for their solution must take place in a constantly changing pattern of culture.

The growing pains of social change provide either the motive power of progress or personal frustration, depending upon one's personal points of view and the degree to which the individual feels capable of meeting his new challenge.

It has been our purpose as teachers and counselors during your years as a student at Olean High School to assist you in the acquisition of such attitudes, competencies, and disciplines as shall be most valuable to you in the years to come. The record that you have achieved is the most meaningful index of what we may expect the future to yield.

May I congratulate you on this your day of graduation, and extend to you my very best wishes for success and happiness.

Sincerely,
W. Cecil Davis
Superintendent of Schools

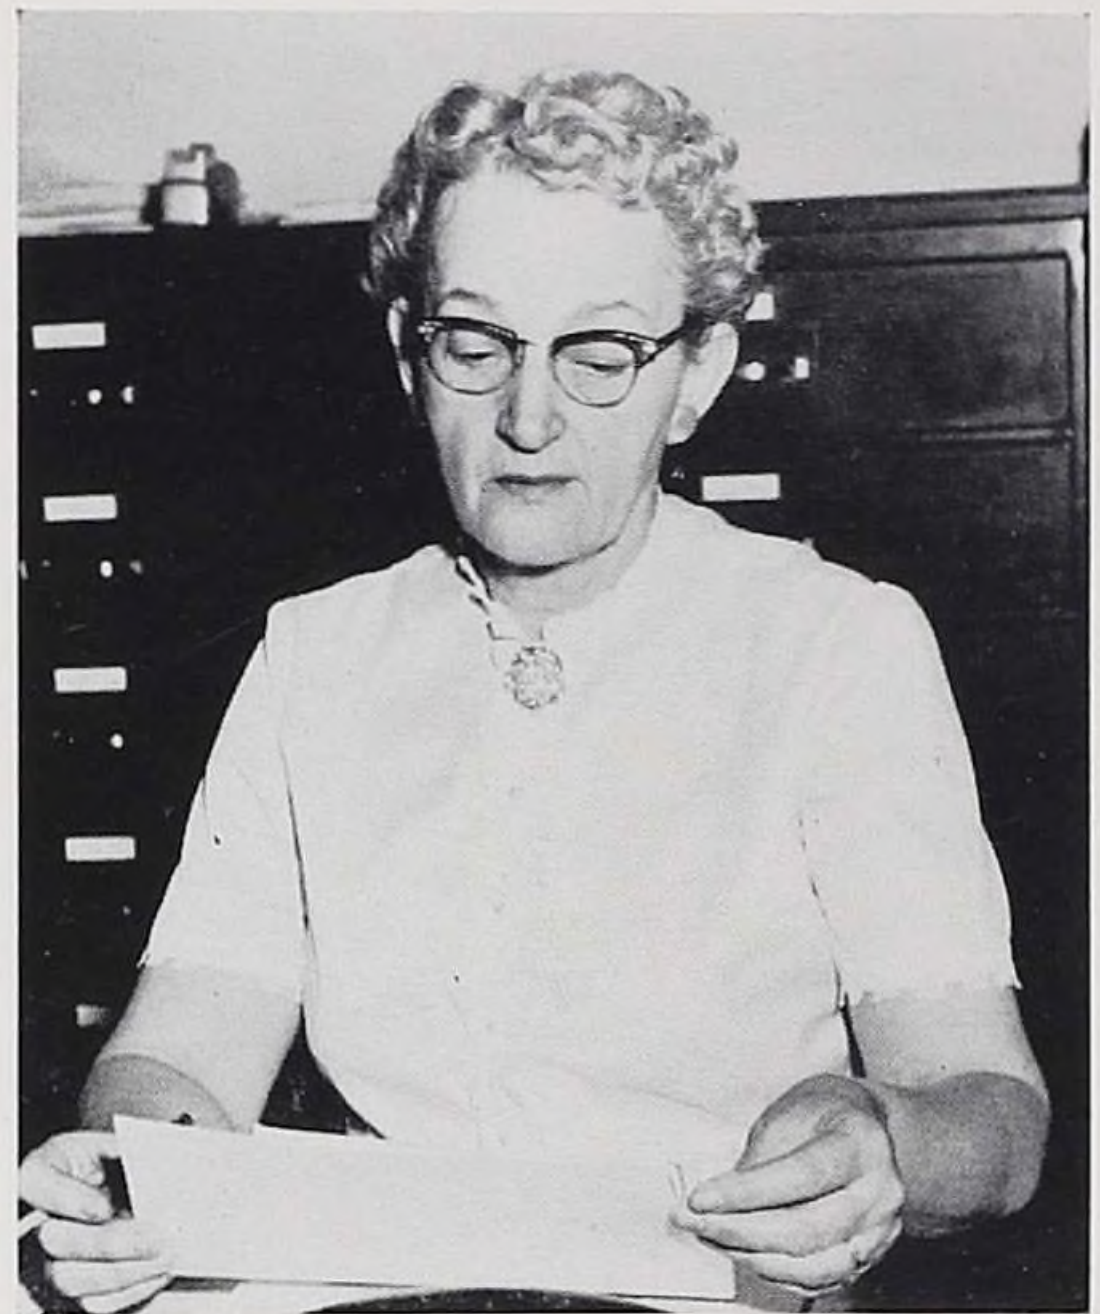

Seniors:

You have been in high school during one of the critical periods of history. Since you are still submerged in the business of education and will be for some time, it is my hope that your brief stay with us has sharpened your appreciation of yourselves as worthwhile individuals, that your further education will sharpen your awareness of the intrinsic value of other people. Then, I would hope that this confluence of interests will make you sincere, responsible and active citizens of an emerging new world where the basic truths you have learned may be exercised for your own well-being and that of your fellowmen. By using your knowledge, abilities and energy with intelligent self-interest, you can develop more distant vision, live better lives and experience greater happiness.
