Gretchen's Ruse

By Elizabeth Conklin.

THE big ocean steamer, "Regina," was moving out of New York Bay. The people on deck watched the shore until it became a dim outline.

"Well Gretchen, my dear, we are on our way at last."

The speaker was Mr. Henry Gillard, and he addressed his protege, Gretchen VanKranken.

She was a very attractive girl of eighteen summers. Her big, true German blue eyes were bright and happy beneath the red, wooly tam-o'-shanter. Her neat tailored suit showed a figure, straight and muscular as a boy's.

Her guardian was a Chicago business man to whom she had been intrusted when she was left an orphan ten years ago. At first the old bachelor had felt that she was a decided burden. He had placed her in a strict boarding-school and thought no more of her. In the past year he had made her acquaintance and had become very fond of her.

Gretchen found her steamer chair and settled herself comfortably to read a pile of letters. The first one was addressed in the writing of her most familiar friend. She hastily opened it for she thought "I know Marian will have some news."

After reading a few moments she exclaimed, "How exciting!"

The cause of her interest was a paragraph on the page before her. "I have just heard (it ran) that Dick Crawford is sailing on the Regina. He is an old friend of Jack's---in fact they were room-mates at Yale. He has quite a reputation as an athlete and was voted the most popular man in his class. Besides, my dear, he is fine looking and very interesting."

"Great chance of my meeting him when we don't know a person on the ship," thought Gretchen, sorrowfully.

Dinner was announced and she had no other chance to think of Mr. Crawford.

The next morning was clear and Gretchen was on deck early, ready to explore the sky. She had not gone far before she spied a steamer chair with "R Crawford" on the tag. Beside it lay an open book. She procured Marian's letter from her pocket and tore out the part relating to Crawford. She placed this in the book and closed it.

Crawford stood nearby and noticing the girl's action, took the trouble to find out who she was.

That afternoon they met in the foredeck.

"Pardon me, but do you own this paper, Miss Van Kraken?" said Crawford, and extended the torn piece.

Mischief flashed in Gretchen's eyes, but she cast them down demurely as she took refuge in the language of her father. "Ich verstehe das nicht," she answered pleasantly.

"What?"

"Ich sagte dass ich sie nicht verstehe."

"Ah, she speaks nothing but German. If she wasn't so mighty pretty I'd give up," murmured Dick.

"Was?" queried she.

"I wanted to ask if you were Miss VanKraken?"

"Ja, ich bin Fraulein Van Kraken."

"Thank you," and he hastily tipped his hat and moved away.

Crawford went down to the ship's library and hunted up a German dictionary. After an hour had passed, he had grasped a sentence of three words and had decided to give up his attempt to learn the German language.

The next day Crawford met Miss VanKraken again. He thought she looked as though she could hardly keep from laughing, but she merely bowed when he spoke. He signified his desire to speak with her but said nothing for sometime. Then Gretchen ventured, "Es ist sehr halt, sucht wahr?"

He did not understand a word, but answered politely, "Yes, I have enjoyed the voyage so far."

He thought he heard a faint giggle, but his companion was very sober. The conversation continued in this way, giving Gretchen much amusement until she saw Mr. Gillard approaching.

Her guardian did not understand German, and she must speak to him in English. What could she do? There was no way out of it.

"Well, well, Gretchen, I see you have found one friend already."

"Yes, guardie, this is Mr. Crawford. Mr. Crawford, my guardian, Mr. Gillard."

Crawford gazed at her in amazement, but managed to say, "Glad to know you, sir."

Dick and Gretchen spent the rest of the voyage getting acquainted. On the last night they stood leaning on the railing and looking alternately at the stars and each other.

"It seems as though I'd known you for years, Dick."

"Does it, Gretchen? I'm so glad because I was wondering whether I dared tell you, 'Ich liebe dich.'"

"Say it in plain American, dear."

Other papers all remind us,
 We can make our own sublime,
 But are we going to let that paper beat us
 Whose exchange we fail to find?
 We can beat them in football or any other sport,
 And when it comes to baseball they think they're being worked;
 Let us tell them that their paper
 Surely is very fine,
 But when they see The Congress later,
 To exchange with us
 They certainly will find time.

A Perilous Experience

by Norman Tompkins

[concluded]

The Captain was short and fat, with a dark swarthy skin and a big black moustache. His legs were encased in leather leggings inside of which were folded a pair of corduroy trousers. His shirt was of blue flannel open at the top, showing the large cords of his neck, all out of proportion to the size of the man. Large gold ear rings added to the ferocity of his appearance. His trousers were held up by a large black belt in which he carried a long revolver and two sharp knives whose points dazzled in the morning sunlight.

He lost very little time in coming to business. He told us that our freedom would cost us five thousand lara, a matter of some importance to a man of small means. But fortunately I had deposited quite a sum of money at one of the Milan banks and my friend was well able to pay his share of the ransom. Then the question arose who was to go to Milan and get the money. I thought of a plan by which that could be accomplished to the satisfaction of all concerned. My plan was this: My friend, whom I knew to be a good, honest fellow, was to go to Milan, get the money and return with it while I was to remain at the robbers' home as a hostage. The Captain turned my plan over in his mind debating with himself as to its wisdom, and finally he said he would give me my answer in an hour. He and the guards turned and left the room. Left alone I hastily informed my friend of a plan that I had conceived in the last half hour. I had finished instructing him and had filled out a note on the Bank of Milan for two thousand five hundred lara, when the Captain entered the room. In a gruff voice and with the same swaggering manner that had marked his first visit, he announced that he would accept my plan. He added that if my friend did not return in three days from the day on which he left the house, that my life would be the forfeit. He then addressed my friend, telling him that he would have a swift horse picked from his stock, a horse which would easily carry him to Milan and back in three days.

At noon that day my friend started. I shall never forget that parting. With two outlaws guarding him, he took an oath to return and free me from these robbers or die a brave death in an effort to do so. I shook his hand and bade him God speed. He was off for the long ride which would end in freedom or death.

I wish to say that his errand was not an easy one, and that he was not free from the danger of being taken captive by other robbers and never being allowed to return to me at the appointed time.

I spent a miserable two days alone save for a few minutes each day when my jailer brought me food and drink. I slept little and found eating an impossibility. I drank a little milk, that was all I wished for.

The morning of the third day dawned, a more beautiful one I have never seen. The sun arose over the little hill in front of my prison like a great mass of fire, flooding the room with the warm glow of a June morning. Numerous thoughts crossed my mind: Where was my friend? Had he returned during the night? When my jailer entered at seven I asked him that question. He answered "No." From then on I sank into a state of misery unlike any feeling that man can possibly realize unless in my position. My thoughts ran continually in the same channel. I became more and more distressed as time went on. Why did he not return---he to whom I had trusted my very life? Was he a coward? I had known him long but he was ever a brave and honorable man. Finally I decided that he must have been delayed by robbers and of course this made me more distressed than ever. I continued in this state until eleven-thirty when the jailer and the Captain entered.

He addressed me and said, in a voice as cold and merciless as the sword he wore: "Sir, you are aware that your messenger has not returned and of the agreement by which we allowed him to be liberated. If he does not return within half an hour you are a dead man. I will not delay for one minute the execution of one who thought to outwit me at my own game. I see your scheme. You thought that with your friend free you could persuade me to free you. I half believe that you told your friend not to return, and now you must pay the penalty. The little game you tried to work will cost you the dearest thing in this world, or plainly speaking, your life."

I tried in every way to convince him that he was wrong, and pleaded to be spared one day longer, as I felt confident that my friend would arrive by that time. The Captain seemed to consider what I had said, and I hoped the consideration would be favorable to a delay. But it was not, for at noon he ordered me to walk out between two of his robbers. The place in which I was to be executed was in a small valley between two knolls. I was placed about fifty feet from two men with loaded rifles. The captain was about to raise his hand as a signal for the men to fire, when the report of a rifle was heard and the Captain fell on his face in the dust, never again to arise. I looked to see who my deliverers were and I saw a sight which gladdened my eyes. There was my friend at the head of a company of Royal Italian Police whose sabers and rifles flashed in the noonday sun. I did not have much time to enjoy the sight for bullets were falling thick and fast. I ran for a place of shelter from the hail of lead. When the fight was over every one of the robbers was dead while many of the police were injured, some seriously. We turned the house of the robbers into a hospital where the wounded were treated by the physician who always accompanied the police on their raids.

Soon I demanded the story of the last three days from my friend.

He said that he had arrived at Milan safely, got the money from the bank, and started to return. But after he had ridden all one day, he was captured by another band of robbers. Just as he was captured a squad of mounted police had ridden up and taken every member of the band prisoner. They returned to Milan to put the robbers in jail. But my friend had interested the old police commissioner in his story and that official ordered a body of police to go with him to the rendezvous of our captors. After it was all over he slapped me on the back and said, "Well, old boy, if it hadn't been for my natural love of talk I might never have interested the old police commissioner, and if I hadn't there is no telling where you would be to-night."

A Few Suggestions As to a Lyceum.

Wouldn't it be a fine thing for our high school? Olean prides herself on the success of her representatives in almost every branch of athletics, and surely we should feel very proud if the Olean High school should turn out a winning debating team. And I heartily believe that in order to put a winning debating team in the field and keep it there, that we should have a Lyceum.

When I turn back in the files of the High School paper, back as far as 1909 I see there accounts of Olean's winning a debate. I turn over a few pages and find a brief account of the meeting of an organization called the Congress. Upon reading the article I found that the Congress was a body of students organized into a society with exactly the same purpose as the Lyceum at Jamestown.

In thinking over the past debate with Jamestown, I have made an effort to find the real cause of Olean's defeat. In treating on the argument advanced by both teams, I should say that surely Olean's arguments were equal to those advanced by Jamestown, in every respect. The efforts of both teams to win the debate were absolutely fair. But in one way Jamestown was far superior to Olean, and that, in the experience which the Jamestown contestants had had in the art of public speaking. They were veterans of many speaking contests which were held under the auspices of a Lyceum, or body of students organized to promote public speaking in that high school.

Now when I think of the excellent results of the Lyceum at Jamestown, I wonder if Olean won debates when they had their Lyceum. Jamestown has one and they are winning every debate they enter. Therefore it follows that a successful debating team is closely associated with a Lyceum.

So I repeat my query, Why not have a Lyceum in Olean?

AN APPRECIATION.

A wonderful---yes, a very unexpected thing, has happened in O. H. S. All outstanding bills against the high school have been paid by Mr. F. L. Bartlett. To him the students wish to extend their sincere thanks. Mr. Bartlett has placed the school on an honorable business basis which it has not possessed for several years. The unpaid debts have been the source of constant ill-feeling between the merchants of Olean and the school as a whole. We rejoice that it is now possible to carry on the many activities of our school life with a clear conscience in regard to our financial circumstances.

To Mrs. Rudolph Mayer we wish to show our appreciation of her untiring efforts in promoting both the business and social interests of the school. We are indebted to Mrs. Mayer for the Dancing Assembly fund and the sinking fund which were brought about through her influence. We extend our deepest thanks and gratitude to those who contributed to the sinking fund and to the people of Olean in general for the interest they are taking in the welfare of our school.

For the first few weeks after the opening of the basket ball season it appeared as though Olean would have no basket ball games in this city. This year the privilege of using the armory was denied to the high school. This was the result of the ill-feeling which had grown up between the school and those in charge of the armory. They declared that in former years the teams have abused the privilege of playing in the armory by acting in a discreditable manner and not living up to their promises in regard to payment for lights. Things looked very dubious for a time. Manager Taylor tried to secure the Roller Rink in which to play the Hornell game, but a number objected to this and so the game was cancelled. About this time a number of influential persons became interested and took up the matter with those in charge of the armory. It was finally decided that we could use the armory on one condition. This condition was that the high school should organize a cadet corps which should meet at the armory every Monday night for one hour's drill.

The armory was thus secured in which to play the Masten game, which resulted so victoriously for Olean. On Monday evening, January 6th, thirty-two boys appeared at the armory and enrolled in the cadet corps. Everyone was very enthusiastic and much merriment was derived from the first drill. However, the awkward squad is fast rounding into a promising cadet corps and will soon rival the 43d's themselves.

The experience we have undergone in securing the armory should serve as a warning for us in the future. Perhaps it is no fault of ours that these privileges have been abused in the past, but it is "up to us" to take this as a lesson and make sure that such a thing does not happen again. In fact let us show our appreciation of the privileges we are receiving every day from not only the armory officials but from the merchants and other people who are interested in our welfare. Remember it is through the kindness of the merchants by taking advertising space in The Congress, that we are able to publish this paper. The subscription price of one copy for each of the nine issues is less than half of the actual cost of printing those nine copies. Patronize the merchants that patronize us and you will help us to keep the ads that run the paper.

The paying of all outstanding bills against the high school by Mr. F. L. Bartlett, the establishment of the Dancing Assembly Fund by Mrs. Rudolph Mayer, and the Sinking Fund by various interested persons, brought up the question of an athletic association. For several years past Olean High school has had no organized association in charge of its athletic activities. No enterprise succeeds unless carried on by careful management and on a strictly business basis. Now if we are to take care of what these persons have so kindly provided for us and come out ahead in our finances at the end of the year, we must have an athletic association to control them.

A constitution has been drafted for the ratification of the student body. The principal provisions of this constitution are that all students of the Olean High school or Junior High school shall be members of this Association. This Association shall be governed by a board composed of one member of the Board of Education, a member of the High School faculty, who shall act as treasurer, the managers of the football and baseball teams, respectively, and the principal of the school who shall be an ex-officio member of this board. This board will nominate candidates for managers of the various teams and have complete control of all High School athletics. No student shall be allowed to represent the school whose school work at any time is below a standard set by the governing board or whose conduct in any place reflects discredit upon the school. No student shall contract any bill to be paid by the Athletic Association without a written order from the treasurer. In choosing team managers, the whole student-body shall be permitted to vote. The above is merely a digest of the constitution. For further information apply for a copy at the office.

In the past years "Congress" has been published once a month, eight times a school year. This has always made a great deal of work for the staff, so this year a new system was introduced whereby Congress was published five times a year with the fifth issue in the form of a Senior Annual. We have found this plan more satisfactory than former ones and much easier for the staff to put out a bigger, better paper.

The Board of Editors has worked together diligently this year and has learned that cooperation means success. Financially Congress has more than paid for itself and we are indebted to many of the merchants of Olean for the support they have given our school paper.

The Congress staff of 1919-1920 extends to the Congress staff of 1920-1921 best wishes for a most successful year.

Now that we have organized, athletics will be considered as a whole and not each sport by itself as heretofore. This division of athletics and the lack of practical faculty supervision were the real causes of large financial deficits in former years. Now that we have been put on our feet again let every student do his or her share in maintaining the credit of the Olean High School.

A number of students have wished to buy high school fobs with their class numerals on so that they might have something to show to what class they belonged. Their opportunity has arrived at last. A high school fob of very neat and attractive design has been placed on sale. It is known as the "Varsity" fob and is made of genuine statuary bronze, with any numerals desired or without the numerals. Sample shown and orders taken by R. Sandburg, Study Hall A. If interested please notify him this week as order will soon close.

DEBATE.

The long awaited debate between Jamestown and Olean High schools took place on the evening of December 19, 1912, two days before the Christmas vacation. The students, after listening to the three preliminary debates which took place during the month and a half preceding the debate with Jamestown, fully anticipated a victory for our team. Assembly was held the last period on the day of the debate when several of the students and faculty made speeches to urge every one to come to the debate in the evening. Those who braved the storm that evening were fully repaid for their enthusiasm.

The subject discussed was, "Resolved, That a Single Tax on Land Values is better than the present system of Taxation." Olean had the negative side and was represented by Herbert Isaman, Norman Tompkins and Edgar Orvis. Their opponents from Jamestown were Arthur Stoeltzig, Glenn Meade and C. Emory Jones.

Herbert Isaman, the first speaker for Olean, showed that socially the single tax would result detrimentally to the country.

Norman Tompkins proved that it was impractical because it was inadequate, and would eventually result in a civil war.

The third and last speaker for Olean, Edgar Orvis, showed that it was undesirable as a scheme of taxation because it placed the greater share of the tax on the farmer.

The debate was presided over by Attorney D. J. Wormer, a graduate of Olean High school. The judges, who decided unanimously in favor of Jamestown, were Howard C. Burdge of Wellsville, Charles H. Korn of Bradford, Pa., and James Johnston, M. D., also of Bradford, Pa. The timekeeper was George C. Alderman, clerk of the board of education.

Olean had worked hard in the preparation for the debate and many were greatly disappointed in the result. But although Olean was defeated it was really a victory because it re-established this profitable and interesting activity in our school. Both teams were well prepared, but Jamestown showed the result of more oratorical practice. Let us not be discouraged but stand back of our team and we shall eventually win out in the art of argumentation.

Before the Christmas recess, the resignation of Mr. Lynn D. Rockwell, instructor in Mechanical Drawing and Turning, was presented to the Board of Education, and although loath to do so, they accepted it. Mr. Rockwell has left Olean and has taken up a broader and more remunerative position at the Turtle Creek High School, a suburb of Pittsburg, Pa. His services as instructor in Mechanical Drawing and Turning have won for him the respect of both the faculty and the student-body, and our best regards follow him in his new work. He is succeeded by Robert S. Brotherton of New York city. Mr. Brotherton is a graduate of Mechanics Institute, Rochester, and filled a position in the Youngstown, O., schools for several years.

RHETORICALS.

On the last morning before the Christmas recess, a general assembly was called and an excellent program of rhetorical was rendered. Each and every number was given in a manner which reflects credit on both participants and the school. The first number was, "A Minister's Grievances," by Maurice Patterson; Vera Kontz, "A Christmas Carol;" Catherine Scheiterle, "Who Santa Claus Wuz," Edith Moore, "Christmas in Different Countries;" Frances Seely, "Buying Christmas Presents;" quartette, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht;" glee club, "Christmas Carol." A cornet solo by Pascal Morell of School III won the repeated applause of the students.

At the general assembly hall on the tenth of January, 1913, a selection by the orchestra was rendered and Mr. Pierce introduced our new Superintendent of Schools, Delmer E. Batcheller. The new Superintendent gave the students a cordial address of advice and welcome.

You cannot drive a nail with a sponge, no matter how often you soak it.

On Wednesday, December 18th, the Olean High school basket ball team invaded the battle grounds of Hornell, and despite the long and tiresome journey (on the Erie) gained a decisive victory over that high school by the score of 33-20. The game was fast and a bit rough at times, but as the Hornell press writes, "The agility of team work and the accurate basket shooting of the visitors had the local boys guessing throughout the entire game."

The Hornell team slightly outweighed Olean, but was unable to stop the speedy passwork or basket shooting of our representatives.

First Half.

Olean started out with a rush, and baskets caged by K. Fitch, Taylor and A. Fitch were so fast that the score stood 8-0 before Hornell hardly laid hands on the ball. The next ten minutes resulted in the score standing 19-6 in Olean's favor. From this time on, it was all Olean, and at no stage of the game were the wearers of the Red and Gold in danger of being tied.

Difficult goals, and clever passwork, by the Olean quintette brought applause from the spectators at intervals throughout this period, and the close guarding of Wormer and Burdick prevented the Hornell five from piling up a much larger score. The score at the end of the first half stood: Olean 29; Hornell 13.

Second Half.

Hornell started off fast by dropping in several field goals. This aroused the high school rooters to such a pitch that the horns and cheers completely drowned out the referee's whistle. Olean, however, soon got into the game, and taking advantage of their comfortable lead, played on the defensive, subtending mainly to team work.

Although Hornell tried hard to pull down the lead of the red team, the score-board at the final whistle, read: Olean 33; Hornell 20.

With nine "Rahs" for Hornell and an O. H. S. Razoo, the Olean team left the floor with the satisfaction of having played the clean, manly game for which our school is widely noted. The line-up:

Olean 33.

Hornell 20.

A. Fitch, l. f.....	l. f., Grisswald
K. Fitch, r. f.....	r. f., Kinney
Taylor-Walldorff, c	c., Redman
Burdick-Taylor, l. g.....	l. g., Holbrook-Preston
Wormer, r. g.....	r. g., Preston-Holbrook

Referee, Huleck, Hornell; Johnson, Olean.

Timekeeper, Greene, Hornell; R. Shanr, Olean.

Time of game, 35 minutes.

Attendance, 250.

Notes of the Game.

Burdick played a fine game, holding Grisswold, the captain, to no field goals.

Walldorff, who played center the last ten minutes, showed up well, and will be heard from later on in the season. He is certainly there on the jump.

Taylor, A. and K. Fitch missed several easy chances the last half. If you could have seen the "fair ones" above the basket, you would not have blamed them for getting fussed.

Wormer and Burdick were too busy "mussing" up the Hornell team, to notice the girls.

Preston, Redman and Kinney were the main point getters for Hornell.

Olean vs. Masten Park.

Olean made its initial appearance on the Armory floor, January 3, 1913, and gained a decisive victory over the fast Masten Park high school team of Buffalo. The game was a whirlwind from start to finish, and at the end of the second period, the Red and Gold team was on top, 34-21. Although the Mastenites greatly outweighed the Olean five, each man stuck pluckily to his task, and succeeded in maintaining a lead throughout the second round.

The game was played on an almost neutral court, as the O. H. S. team had not practiced at the Armory before the game.

First Half.

Masten Park shot three baskets in quick succession, and had Olean up in the air for the first five minutes of play. The red team, however, soon settled down and gradually overtook the lead of the Buffalo five. The game was closely contested in this half, and only a few points separated the two teams. Olean had no little trouble shooting baskets, as they were different from those of the Y. M. C. A., where practice has been held the past few months. The O. H. S. quintette got in some good passwork near the last of this period, and the score stood: Olean 18; Masten Park 14.

Second Half.

Masten Park again started the scoring in the second half, and nearly tied the score, before Olean woke up. They, however, came back strong, and the forwards found the wicket repeatedly. From here on Olean pulled away from their opponents, who had slowed up considerably in their team work. It was evident that the Olean team was in better physical condition, than the visitors, for they kept up the fast playing, and never let up in their work, while Masten seemed unable to play the game as they started. The final score stood: Olean 34; Masten Park 21. The line-up:

Olean 34.

Masten Park 21.

A. Fitch, l. f.....	l. f., Holloway
K. Fitch, r. e.....	r. e., Dodge
Taylor, center	center, Hansee
Burdick, l. g.....	l. g., Wiegel-Lake
Wormer, r. g.....	r. g., Alway
Walldorff, sub	sub, Lake

Referee, John Noble.

Timekeeper, Clarence Daily.

Time of game, 35 minutes.

Notes of the Game.

The usual close guarding of Wormer and Burdick kept Masten Park's shots long and difficult.

Coach Johnson hopes to strengthen up Olean's defense, which was rather weak during the first half.

Captain Alway of the Buffalo team played a brilliant game, caging several long goals from the field.

In the preliminary game, the O. H. S. Reserves defeated Cuba High school to a 10-9 score. The game was nip and tuck from the time the starter's whistle blew until the end. The Olean five maintained a small lead throughout the game, the score at the end of the first half being, Olean 7; Cuba 3. In the second half, Cuba caged three lucky baskets near the end, but Olean finally won out 10-9.

Manager Hart has arranged games with all the small high schools in this vicinity, and will probably have a team that will make the Varsity hustle.

There is some talk of organizing a hockey team. This would be something new, and would be a treat to all. Mr. Marcus has kindly offered the services of the Basin, on which to build a rink, and there is no reason why Olean High school cannot be represented in hockey, as well as in the other branches of athletics. There is undoubtedly some very good material in our school, as we have some very speedy skaters, who could certainly chase the puck around some. Those who are organizing the hockey team have the best wishes of the student body, and will doubtless receive their support and patronage. A.H.F.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL NEWS.

How did Triesky and Savage feel when the news of the accident was told?

Little Miss Taylor---she likes Thornbury; and Little Annie Hutchings---well, she does, too.

Crumb Robarts has a Ceres of girls close at hand.

We would all like to know who "Susie" is. This unknown young lady has brought much merriment to the Juniors.

George Sweitzer and Ruth Ross do their corresponding by letters left in books. Middle initial (a.)

A. Hutchings thinks "Jeff's" style of hair dressing is splendid. (Come again, please.)

J. Crowley looks to the Shaner twins for their arithmetic help. Help! Shiners.

Lundberg is some English "shark."

Marie Gay thinks Norman Tompkins is a wonderful debater. "Oh! you messenger boy, Curley.)

"The Story Trio," Atkins, Robarts and Worden. They fairly devour Alger alive.

Miss Scanlon says that Forrest is very dense. Is it because she can't see thro' him?

Miss Van Dyke's name ought to be Mary, for she has a little Lamb.

And everywhere that Laura went the Son(ny) was sure to go.

The ship, "The A. C. Finger" has struck a Sandburg. John Degnan is getting very brave. He is not even afraid of a Lyon.

What's the attraction at Limestone, Atkins.

"Jeff" Borgstrand wishes to thank the Editors for putting his name in print.

S. Lewis likes to saw Wood(fill.)

O. Heliker's attention is centered on Miss Wagner at present. What is next Ov?

H. Thornbury seems very interested in the girl in Seat 17. For information ask Miss Hutchings.

Weston seems to have his eyes on a girl on the Freshie side. Who is she Doug?

Some think S. Lewis is made up of nothing but giggles and wiggles.

It is reported that one of our young ladies kneaded dough with her gloves on. There are others. The manager of The Congress needs dough with his shoes on; he needs dough with his overcoat and mittens on; he needs dough with his shirt on, and unless the delinquents pay their subscriptions soon, our manager will need dough without a thing on---and Olean is no Garden of Eden in the winter time.

The girls all laughed when they saw (John Pilon,) but you should have seen (Lindgrin.)

How about cheer leaders? The cheering in Assembly seems to be sadly in need of proper leadership. Could not two leaders be elected by a vote of the student body---a girl and a boy---to take charge of this important activity? As it is, the girls seem to be showing more spirit than the boys and we feel sure that the cheering would be very much enjoyed by all if led in the right way. We hope that this matter will be considered and more enthusiasm shown by the students both in Assembly and at the basket ball games where we hear nothing but an occasional murmur from M. B. A. enthusiasts.

EXCHANGES.

Don't knock. Boost!

The Oracle. We take pleasure in announcing that the Christmas Oracle from Buffalo, won the first place in our exchanges. The beautiful cover and interesting short stories are a true sample of their usual painstaking work.

The Red and Black. You are getting better and better every time. Keep it up. We would like to put you first.

The Academic Observer. Your paper is neat and attractive, but a few cuts would add much to its appearance.

The Vindex. Your stories and editorials are fine, but a few cuts would help you out.

The Student Life, Pomona College. You evidently intend to keep up your excellent reputation.

The Spinner. Your neat cover design makes up for the unusually small issue.

The Blue and White, Hamilton High School. You have some fine short stories, but we are sorry to find you lacking in cuts.

The Clarion. To say that you are as good as usual we are paying our highest compliment.

The Gondolier, Venice, Cal. You are new to us, but you are very welcome. Your "Face Wrinkles" are fine. Come again.

The Boone Review, Wuchang, China. We are very glad to see our old acquaintance back again.

The Spokesman. We like your football stories and your ideas of this popular game.

The Athenian. We welcome another stranger.

The High School Journal. Your strong point is your short stories.

The Occident. You are above par, as usual.

The Volcano. Very neatly gotten up.

The Walking Leaf. Cuts would improve your paper very much.

The Techtorian. Your short stories are interesting, and best of all you have some snappy cuts.

The Stylus. Your cuts are all very appropriate.

The Blue and White, Trinidad, Col. Why not put criticisms in your Exchange column?

Note. All Exchanges are to be left in the library, and they are to remain there, not to be carted around in some absent-minded one's hip pocket.

Open every afternoon and evening except Sunday, from 2:30 to 5:00 and 7:30 to 10:00. To succeed in your school work you must set a definite mark, and make it not a low but a high one. You must plan your work, and then work your plan, but all your planning and working will avail you but little unless the body is kept in fighting trim. You must be able to hit the line hard, whether it be in Greek or on the football field. When your mind becomes dull and you are not accomplishing what you should, you can make yourself physically fit by taking an hour or two of pleasant and healthful exercise at the Olean Roller Rink.

Instructors and students are all cordially invited to any session. Friday and Saturday afternoons and Friday evenings especially for the young, but all are welcome.

The entrance to the Rink is plainly marked. There are no doors or any entrances from hallway or rink to any other part of the building.

Under the new management the Rink is being conducted in the most approved manner. Come and see.

Class Song, '20.

I.

Tune: "For Love," from "Fiddlers Three."

We went to school, dear, To learn the Golden Rule, dear,
To give our school cheer—for fun.

Now we are done, dear, we'll leave No. 1, dear,
And the fun, dear,—for work.

We have all got a good start, so it's up to us.

We'll leave our residents, and soon become presidents—
Oh yes! We will—like fun.

II.

To college we go, dear, and we'll mend our clothes, dear,
Darn our hose, dear—for fun.

Back we will come, dear, when vacation draws near,
In assembly ap—pear.

We will all be great men and women, you see,
Then we'll have a gym and a place to swim.

Oh yes! We will—like fun.

III.

Out in life we'll go, dear, to complete our show, dear,
To show what we know, dear—for success.

We'll play the game, dear, everywhere the same, dear,
To win fame, dear,—I guess.

We'll live a life worth living, as good people do.

We'll bring prices down, the profiteers will frown.

Oh yes! We will—will you?

J. R. Kelsey,
Vera L. Peacock.

CLASS GRINDS

Friends, Teachers, Classmates, lend me your ears;
I come to bury the past, not to praise it.
The evil each class does, lives after it;
The good is oft forgotten as they pass;
So let it be with us.

Most of us can look back over four long years spent here, some more. Some must look forward to another year. Be not discouraged, remember the immortal words, "Sir, I would rather be a Senior than be President."

Undoubtedly the better half of the senior class as well as the rest of the world are the girls, so a word first ought to be said about them. We therefore give the minutes of a Girls' Literary Society.

The meeting was called to order when the girls all arrived. Owing to the large attendance, several girls were required to sit in the sandbox and some outside on the fire-escape—much to their displeasure. Since it was her turn, Marion Farr was in the chair. After roll call the minutes were read and improved. Vera Peacock then rose to her feet.

"Miss President, owing to the fact that there is a slight amount due the janitor for service in chasing the L. O. B., I move that a tax of one cent a head be levied to meet this obligation."

The President: "Do I hear a second?—The motion is lost."

Miss Driscoll: "I move that an order be drawn on the treasurer for the amount necessary."

Miss Weinman (reporting for Miss Stillman): "There ain't no money in the treasury."

Miss Duffy: "I move that there be $1.50 in the treasury."

Miss Stevenson: "I second the motion."

The President: "The motion is carried."

Miss Cobb: "I move that the treasurer be authorized to collect the back dues of the members."

The President: "Do I hear a second? The motion is lost."

Miss Karl: "I move that there be a committee appointed to keep ineligibles from coming to this meeting."

Miss Murphy: "I second the motion."

Miss Harsch (rising hastily): "Really, girls, I object. I very much doubt whether we have the right to set aside one of the time-honored customs of this body. As long as I have been in the club, Albert has called here. It would be a positive insult to him and the other boys to attempt any such thing. Think of the years and years it has been done. I appeal to you, girls, do not do this rash act without careful consideration."

Miss O'Toole: "I agree with Miss Karl. Corrine is wrong——"

"Miss Crannell (interrupting hastily): "I really cannot sit in my seat and see this rash thing done! Why, girls, think a moment, for twenty years through sunshine and storm, the boys have come to steal the ice cream from its hiding place in the hall. And now—to think, that they are to be disgraced in this way——" (Breaks down completely and sinks to her seat.)

Miss Beckman: "I move that out of consideration for the two ladies who have spoken so feelingly that the motion be laid on the table."

This being the end of the general business session, the following program was presented:

Co-education as a Factor in Degenerating the Class Room. Miss Oliver.

Love Under Difficulties—an original story by Miss Allen
Read by Miss Garr.

Essay on "Art" Miss Slinker.

The Future Greatness of H. J. Miller Doris Wagner
Debate: Resolved, it is nobler to cut than to flunk.

Affirmative: Misses Hannifan and Tomes.

Negative: Misses Grossman, Rouse, Coates, Stauffer and Peterson.

Affirmative won an overwhelming victory.

They cited much from personal experience and so made their points much clearer. The negative claimed that the affirmative had the better side of the argument.

This being the last number on the program, refreshments consisting of cabbage salad and pop were served. The following boys were entertained: Woodruff, Walrath, Kinley, Job and Pearson, after which the meeting adjourned since it was nearly nine o'clock.

To present a few more worthy seniors, we have decided to place for your approval or disapproval this supplement to "Congress."

No, girls, the umpire isn't a Bolsheviki even though he Grumbles.

It has long been the custom of ye olde graduating classes, yea, not only ye graduating classes, nay more, of all ye olde classes to grumble. Yea, and they have had reason, and so do we.

Ye goode and jolly class of 1920 has suffered much, yea muchly, but that ye coming generation may prosper and wax fat we proffer ye following advice to ye great and good arbiters of our fate, that they may find in them ye grain of truth and that succeeding classes may not suffer as have we.

Firstly: Many times and oft hath it been said in ye halls and byways of ye Olean High School by ye learned pedagogues that a word to the wise is sufficient. Pray then, Board of Education, Kind Sirs, where is our gymnasium? We have whispered our need in ye lowly dens and screameth it from ye house tops, but heretofore our gymnasium is not.

Secondly: Dear sirs, we needeth also a lunch room, where they who come from far and distant climes, such as East Olean, to enjoy the words of wisdom of ye illustrious faculty, may enjoy ye ample repasts without leaving ye olde and multitudinous crumbs on ye desks of ye other scholars and on ye floors of ye goode olde halls.

Thirdly: Mr. Chamber of Commerce, Kind Sir, oftimes thou hath boasted that "Olean offers opportunities," but where, brave sir, doth it offer opportunities for ye pig-skin chasers of ye Olean High School to chase, or ye basket ball shooters to shoot. We make this plea to you, for were it made elsewhere, it would fall on deaf ears, and we hope that thou who hath worked wonders, will perchance work of few for us.

Fourthly: Ye greatly great, who rulest with iron hands and rods, and ye like, hath decreed that we have no Bazaar. Ye classe of twenty hath waited with open and unprejudiced minds for ye explanation, but hath one come? Nay! Nay! And is this right, brethren, that no explanation is offered? Nay! Nay!

Fifthly: Once in a great while, yea, a great, great while, ye goode old partye is held in ye kindergarten, but when ye stiff collar beginneth to wilt, and ye bashfulness to disappear, and ye merriment to run high, ye greate and goode sayeth, "Enough," and we must cease and slink home, for if we complain we merely getteth more "Work."

Sixthly: Ye grande and noble classe of 1920 hath many a grievance yet to offer, but were we to tell all, the rest of our days would be spent in "grumbling," but before we stop, ye great and illustrious "marms" and "masters," who trieth to feed us knowledge, remember that ye students who taketh four or five subjects, cannot study four or five hours on each after going to school six hours, and hope to have much time left for ye other pursuits.

Again we say, ye classe of 1920 hath endured great wrongs, but hath done so in a noble manner, and as martyrs we lift our eyes from our diplomas and shout with glee, "Thank heaven, we're through," and with it we offer ye little prayer that they who follow may not have to undergo the trials and tribulations which have been ours, for they not having our strength will fall by the Regents and perish; and, also, that ye grumbles of 1920 will bring ye goode and long-hoped-for results.

Alex W. Burger.

Class Poem

"20."

Hail to the Class of '20!
Its loyal sons and true!
For well they's done each task assigned
In upholding the "White and Blue."

Hail to the Class of '20!
May its memory linger long
And its name and fame be honored
Both in story, and in song!

We love you, Class of '20!
Four years for you we've toiled;
But our love was strengthened year by year,
And your honor remains unsoiled!

Our President is Johnny Fitz,
A man with brains is he.
You'd admire him if you knew him,
Most respect for him have we!

Our Johnny's not the man to shirk,
He's Johnny on the spot.
Difficulties are his specialty;
He knows the greatest lot!

The Seniors are a mighty class,
No other can compare;
All other classes, high and low,
With envy green do stare!

A Senior passes down the hall,
The Freshmen scatter fast,
The voices of the Sophomores hush
Till the mighty man is past!

Around the corner a Junior stands,
A-laying down the law,—
Till the Senior strolls upon the scene,
Then he stops with fright and awe!

The deeds we '20's leave undone
Are left for Seniors coming.
For such a class as '21
Can surely set things humming!

Our best wishes we leave for all,
We hope that they can use them.
IF THEY'RE AS GOOD AS "'20" WAS
We vow, they'll never lose them!

Arthur M. Barber.

History of the Class of 1920

The time draws near with great rapidity when there shall depart from our midst an illustrious group of unsurpassed scholars and loyal supporters of the ideals of the O. H. S. It is but fitting that we relate in some detail their history.

In September of the year nineteen hundred and sixteen there entered into this learned institution, namely the Olean High School, a group of eager knowledge seekers. Many came from the Junior High School; others from the tranquility of the country to join in the activity and bustle of our school, and still others from various institutions of learning. But whatever their origin, their arrival marked an important epoch in the history of the Olean High School.

From the moment of their entrance these Freshmen applied themselves to study with a concentration unsurpassed by any former Freshman class. They seemed inspired in whatsoever they undertook, and their efforts in study, in social events and in athletics were crowned by the utmost and gratifying success.

To lead them in their highly successful career, this group of illustrious Freshmen chose Harold Fox as their President.

As an incentive to both its social and intellectual advancement, the Freshmen class under the direction of Miss Keim and Miss Moule organized a literary club which was characterized by appropriate cognomen, "The Naelo Club." This noted event occurred with due solemnity on the eve of the tenth of November in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and sixteen. The membership of the club increased very rapidly, and the following officers were elected: President, Joseph Mountain; vice-president, Corrine Harsch; secretary, Harold Fox; treasurer, Thelma Perkins.

Nor were the efforts of the class entirely confined to these more serious activities for it proved its comic ability in the highly humorous band which represented the Freshman class in the Hallowe'en Parade. Here, the diversified number of musical instruments might only be equalled by the variety of ideas and efforts of the class.

In September nineteen hundred and seventeen after a much needed rest from the strain of their Freshman year's activity, this same group met with renewed zeal and self-confidence to begin their Sophomore year. To act as their pilot in the rough voyage before them, they wisely chose as President one of their members, Leo Merritt.

To uphold the dignity of the new heights to which they had ascended, they maintained well their old reputation for brilliancy and success. In a picnic planned by the Junior Study Hall they were undoubtedly the leaders. Likewise they appeared in a second Hallowe'en celebration for which activity they were duly praised and highly lauded.

To develop more highly their oratorical and literary talents they produced several plays, the actors and actresses of which could scarcely be equaled except by professionals.

In September, nineteen hundred and eighteen, they made their triumphant return to the scenes of their former victories and achievements—a little more sophisticated, worldly and self-confident—but eager as ever to overcome the difficulties of the new term. Wise as usual in the choice of their officers, they elected John Fitzgerald, president; Ruth Crannell, vice-president; George Mayer, secretary, and Leo Merritt, treasurer, together with Miss Swensson as faculty advisor. In their Junior year they were a source of constant worry to their hostile neighbors, the Seniors, who despite every effort could scarcely compete with the magnificent successes of the Juniors.

Society always found them among its most prominent and popular members, and the big Christmas, Junior-Senior Ball owed much to their efforts. On Friday, October fourth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, they gave a Football Dance in the Kindergarten room, the proceeds from which were spent in the purchase of a football which commemorated the donors in the heart of every football man.

It was in this year that Olean was visited by that most pitiless devastating scourge, the Spanish Influenza, and during this trying period the girls of the class of 1920 proved very capable nurses.

Patriotism is most decidedly a characteristic of this class, and its generous contributions to the Liberty Loan Drives, Red Cross and other organizations have made its name an emblem of patriotism and true Americanism.

From the beginning of its Freshman year up to the present time, the class has never been deficient in athletics. In football during the year 1919 and 1920 it was represented by eight football and three basket ball men. Another form of athletics in which this class has shown some remarkable aptitude was in several hikes to Bradford and elsewhere. In whatever hike they took part they showed unsurpassed strength of endurance, fairness and fortitude.

In the month of September, nineteen hundred and nineteen, they returned to the O. H. S. as mighty Seniors, and at once proceeded to re-elect John Fitzgerald as President, Ruth Crannell as vice-president and a new secretary and treasurer combined, George Fitzgerald. The class of 1920 could not have chosen more capable officers to lead them through their last and most eventful year—a year of arduous labor and little play during which time its members prepared for their final departure from the school in which they had triumphed so long. Much thanks is due to Miss Fitzgerald for her aid as faculty advisor.

In this year the O. H. S. was seized by an absolute mania for football and basketball, in both of which the class of 1920 made a fine showing. Nor was this year without social events, for despite the long hours of study to which the Seniors zealously subjected themselves, they still found spare time in which to give several enjoyable parties.

In a series of contests between the future classes, the class of 1920 showed particularly oratorical and dramatic ability as comedians in the presentation of "The District School."

But as the crowning event of the many victorious incidents in its history, the class aspired to histrionic honors and outdid itself in the success of that dramatic production, "The Man on the Box." From the moment of the rising of the curtain until it was lowered the play was a stupendous, overwhelming success. Much credit is due not only to the efforts of the participants but the splendid coaching of Miss Hobart and Mr. Tower. Financially the play was also a success, and the money realized from its production will be expended in the purchase of a bronze tablet as a memorial of those of our illustrious alumni who sacrificed their lives in France.

Now as we, the Class of 1920, glance back over our four years' sojourn in the O. H. S., we ask no reward for the fulfillment of our duty save the honor and love of our friends and fellow students. And may fortune and favor attend each member of the mirthful, generous, impulsive and illustrious class of 1920 as that member departs each in his separate way.

Dorothy Karl.

J. Caesar was a famous cuss,
So ancient records say.
He used to drive a jitney bus
Along the Appian way.
Now Brutus was a traffic cop,
The finest in his class;
He used to make the jitney stop
To let the people pass.
So that is how began the row
Between them, it appears,
They used to quarrel every day
And kept it up for years.

Class Prophecy.

Seeress (seated with crystal), Marcella Driscoll.

Enter two members of Class of 1920.

Henry—Seeress, we have come to enlist your occult power in informing us as to the future of our class mates.

George—Yes, we want to know what is to become of all the dear ones who are with us tonight.

Henry—First, what future do you see for our noble class president, Johnny Fitzgerald?

Seeress—Johnny? I see him presiding over the 1933 graduating class at Sing Sing. In this class are Frank Walrath and Sheridan Spicer, who have been taking an extended course in oil stock promotions. And oh—here is another of your flock—over this class of promoters is the professor, Adam Kinley. But their future is much brighter, for I see them all interested in a legitimate aeroplane concern.

George—And Ruth Crannell—has she followed up her executive ability that she has so often demonstrated in her high school career?

Seeress—Yes, she has. Now I can see her as congressman in Washington. She frequent revisits Ischua, where she formerly held the position as janitress in the high school. And—in this school is Edna Crandall, preceptress, and Leona Beckman, physical director.

Henry—Do you see any of our illustrious classmates in the movies?

Seeress—Well, now—yes, I do. Here is our pretty Margaret O'Toole in Miss Mary Pickford's slippers. But I also find some others following theatrical careers. Doreen Whitworth has taken over the active management of the Palace Theatre where the special attraction is Vera Peacock and Gilbert Pearson as toe dancers. And wait—Katherine Tomes displays her talent in high diving in the "Ever Laugh" circus. This is owned and managed by the district school pedagogue, Robert Kelsey, and his fiancée whom we all know as Alice Cobb. Formerly with this circus was Alex Burger, the acrobat, who resigned his position and went to live in seclusion in South Africa to recover from a broken heart caused by a Junior. But one day a scheming young widow, once Doris Wagner, was seated high in a weeping willow singing as sweetly as a canary. Alex was touched by her voice and soon forgot his old love and was on with the new. While traveling through the orient Mr. and Mrs. Burger ran across some of the slaves of Arthur Barber who fled to that distant clime to escape the breach of promise suit being pressed against him by Mary Slinker. Among those interested are Katherine O'Brien, Theresa Spiesman and Dorothea Smith, who are awaiting the outcome of this case before starting theirs.

Henry—Tell us about Phat and Shorty?

Seeress—You mean Donald Harvison and Howard Miller? They are portrayed as partners in the firm of "Short and Long, Window and Street Cleaners, Inc." William Donovan assists them with a fleet of water wagons.

George—Say, Henry, I wonder what will become of Corrine and "Boo."

Henry—Oh, that's easy, don't you know?

Seeress—Corrine and Boo. Oh—here they are. Boo Scheiterle keeps house while Corrine electioneers.

George—Well, don't any of our prodigies follow up their artistic propensities?

Seeress—Possibly. Just a moment. Yes, here is Johnnie Woodruff, an artist in Greenwich Village. His long and curly hair is most gratifying to his models, Dorothy Karl and Gretchen Sturm. Poor Johnnie resides in an old attic where Miss Dorothy Peterson, professional char woman, renovates his apartments weekly. He can afford this luxury only through the charity of Mrs. Vincent Pettit, formerly Barbara Stevenson.

Henry—New, how about literature; have we no representative in that dignified calling?

Seeress—Before me appears the title of Laura Duffy's best seller, "How to Talk Without Saying Anything." Also Virginia Stauffer shows considerable talent in this line as demonstrated in "Saucy Stories," which is edited by Marion Hannifan.

George—I suppose Zella Carnahan will make her name in grand opera, will she not?

Seeress—I'd say—no—she and Norman Job are running a sheep ranch in Colorado.

Henry—What do you see for Katherine Murphy?

Seeress—I find Katherine Murphy the proprietor of a drug store in the Sandwich Islands. Her best customers are Dr. Joe Mountain and Miss Myra Homer who indulges too much in cosmetics.

George—And seeress, where do you see Ted Hernblom?

Seeress—Ted? Why, he is head flap jack turner down at the Presto. Isabel Allen washes dishes at this noble institution. She is certainly in love with——her work.

George—This isn't all of our dear classmates, is it, seeress?

Seeress—My dears, no. Robert Davis has graduated from Madame Mildred Grossman's School of Costume Design. Robert has a neat little modiste shop in South Olean. Milford Buckley sews—buttons and snaps on the costumes of Robert's most fashionable, exclusive customer, Marion Farr.

Henry—Where, I wonder, is the baby of our class, Gladys Stanton?

Seeress—Poor little Gladys—she is a stewardess on a flat boat on the Dead Sea. Herbert Hornung is trying to decide when he takes the fatal step whether it will be with Gladys or with Laura Rouse. Laura has adopted her old name, as her husband, Harold Fox, has treated her horribly, cruelly and flirted with Grace Miles.

George—Say, what do you think will become of Degnan? I bet he'll be a policeman.

Seeress—Policeman? Oh, no. Here is Jimmy out on the Sahara Desert. He has been changed into a wild, wild rose by the fairy queen, Anita Searl.

Henry—What becomes of Grace Garr, seeress?

Seeress—Why, she knits sweaters and stockings for Miss Bessie Kent's cats. Miss Bessie fears her darling little hopefuls will suffer when winter comes.

George—Can't you see Marion Oliver and Lillian Garvey? What becomes of them?

Seeress—Those two girls—yes, I see them but not very plainly. They eloped with a couple of strangers one night and nothing more has been heard of them. Helen Miller, as Olean House taxi driver, helped them escape. Horrors—I see a humbug in your midst. Ha, ha! Gretchen Geary is a counterfeiter of pennies in Russia. The villian! And no one else but Mary Gill is aiding her in their ignoble career.

Henry—Where do you see Lillian Hardy and Grace Carpenter?

Seeress—Boys, I find them as two old spinsters, one with a careful eye on a man named Jerry and the other with her eye on an Irish policeman.

George—Oh, is Ronald Foote still that mysterious six feet over two feet all in one Foote?

Seeress—Well, he certainly is mysterious to some for he is the manager of the World Series Champions. As his aid-de-camp Leah Coates is coach of the girls' line. Leah is mourning the loss of her star pitcher, Mary Weinman, who left to help Raymond Mohr in raising grain.

Henry—You must have mentioned all of our classmates, haven't you, seeress?

Seeress—Yes,—Oh, no, wait a moment. I see more. Here comes someone over a hill. Oh, yes! It's Miss Fitzgerald, our faculty advisor. She is coming up Sullivan Hill to love and advise more Seniors. This must do, for the crystal is clouding.

George—We thank you, for now our minds are at rest as we are pleased with the future of our classmates.

G. F. Fitzgerald,
Marcella Driscoll,
Henry J. Corsette.

Class Will.

Be it known that we, the class of nineteen hundred and twenty, of the Olean High School, in the city of Olean, do make, publish and declare this our last will and testament.

We will and bequeath the presidential office of John Fitzgerald to James Duffy and may Duffy lead his flock of promising youngsters in the straight and narrow path of responsibility as well as John.

We do will and ordain that the popularity, (especially with the girls), of Bob Davis be left to Ernest Edel. We earnestly hope that Edel will be as successful as Bob has been in this undertaking.

The wonderful voice of Zella Carnahan which enchants us as we listen to its melodious cadences and which carries us off into Elysian fields, we give with our heartiest wishes to Evelyn Klink.

To Glenn King we bequeath the oratorical ability of speaking which has held us spellbound by the hour and also the football laurels of "Boo" Scheiterle.

The fairylike gracefulness of George Fitzgerald who trips so merrily the light fantastic toe on winged feet we bequeath to Elwood Smith.

To Bruce Black we do most graciously bequeath Bill Buckley's golden locks which have dazzled us by their brilliance.

The ability of viewing higher altitudes and gazing aloft into the clouds of Howard Miller we leave to Raymond Rice.

To Ruth Studholme we leave the mathematical achievements of Isabel Allen who has passed merrily through so many Regents in geometry during her brief stay in high school.

To Ray Knight we leave Art Barber's, alias Count Karloff's magnetic power of ensnaring two girls at once.

To Hugh Dollard we bequeath the irresponsibility and adorable childishness of Herbert Hornung.

To Mary Shelby we leave the scholastic ability and the zealous pursuit of study of Vera Peacock.

To Ruth Van Campen we leave the brilliancy in chemistry of Marcella Driscoll, who is seriously considering a continuance of that study for a number of years.

The extraordinary theatrical ability of Alex Burger which has not surprised us because we always knew he was the celebrity of the class, we will to Ernest Woodruff.

To Harriet Caufield we leave the artistic and Parisian taste in dress of Laura Duffy, who gained this knowledge from studying Miss Castle.

We leave Marion Oliver's position as the "Vamp of the Class of '20" to Margaret Larkin.

We leave Tessy Spiesman's madly rushing about spasms and wild gyrations to Viola Homer.

To Doctor Reed, alias the "Coco Cola Kid," we leave the most serious disposition of Bob Kelsey and his mania for visiting the graveyard for the purpose of communing with his solemn thoughts.

To Hon. Rusty Hannifan we leave Boo's presidency of the L. O. B.

To Mary Fitzpatrick we leave the languishing glances and sophisticated air of Doris Wagner.

To Doris Stillman we leave Ruth Crannell's position as Editor-in-Chief of Congress.

We leave Henry Corsett's natural inclination to flirting to Pack Morell, a most confirmed trifler with love.

To Mendel Harris we leave Frank Walrath's seat in Virgil. Harris promises to be Miss Markle's most brilliant student.

To Brute Flynn, chuck full of talent, we leave the musical ability of Joe Mountain.

To the Junior Class we give the artistic powers of the Seniors by which they have won many honors.

We hereby name and appoint Mr. Work and Miss Hobart as the executors of this our last will and testament, and revoke all other and former wills made and executed by us.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hand and seal this twenty-second day of June, nineteen hundred and twenty.

CLASS OF 1920, Testator.

Signed and sealed as the last will and testament of nineteen hundred and twenty, to which we, at the request of the testation, in their presence and the presence of each other, subscribe our names as witnesses.

Corrine Harsch,
Ted Hernbloom.

Don't Cry, Little Juniors, Don't Cry.

There! little Juniors, don't cry!
We have beat you in baseball, you know,
And in other things too,
Which have made you so blue,
Are things of the long ago;
And childish trouble will soon pass by—
There, little Juniors, don't cry.

There, little Juniors, don't weep!
You've a Red-head to lead you, I know,
And the silly old pet,
Surely had brains to let
But that was long, long ago.
And childish trouble will soon pass by—
There, little Juniors, don't cry.

There, little Juniors, don't pout!
Your feelings are hurt I know,
And the Senior gleams
At your youthful schemes,
Which were troubles of long ago.
But next year holds all for which you sigh—
Good-bye, little Juniors, good-bye!

Football Team

ATHLETICS

BURGER '20

The school year is over, games have been played, won and sometimes lost; but we will always remember the teams of 1919-1920.

When the football season opened there were only three men on the squad who had ever played 'varsity ball before, but by hard work and perseverance a team worthy of the Red and Gold was produced. Noteworthy among the team's achievements was the defeat of Warren, the first in five years.

THE TEAM:

Scheiterle, captain, left end. "Boo" was fast, a hard tackler, a good leader, especially adept in receiving passes, and breaking up interference.

Triesky, left tackle. "Chink" was a raving, tearing wild man and a perfect stonewall.

Buckley, left guard. "Bill" was a steady, consistent player with a dainty habit of reaching up and interrupting the other side's passes.

Corsett, center. "Hank" was reliable, a good passer and right there in the pinch.

Miller, right guard. "Phat" was a mountain on the defense and opened up holes wide enough to drive a wagon through.

Dollard, right tackle. "Red" was a real star, quiet but right there. About the best tackle in this part of the state.

Barber, right end. "Art" was an end who could break up interference and get the man at the same time; a regular bulldog.

Burger, quarter. "Alex" had to do the quick head work for the team and he was never found lacking; a quarter back who always used his brains.

Davis, manager, right half. "Bob" was speedy, a sure tackler, a clever drop kicker, a perfect passer, a real back.

Sirdevan, captain-elect, fullback. "Jimmy," a whirling, gyrating, smashing, tearing, diving maniac with the ball. Always there in the defense. As good as most college backs.

Sullivan, left halfback. "Butts," Mercury in mole-skins, greased lightning. They couldn't hold him.

Degnan, sub-back. "Jimmy," a fighting Irishman.

Casey, sub-lineman. "K—C," an "all American" line-man if he only had the weight.

Hornung, sub-center. "Herb," a good little 'un.

Knight, sub-end. "Ray" would have played regular in most schools.

—————O. H. S.—————

Under the most unfavorable conditions the school was able to produce a basketball team which although it did not win the greater part of its games, made the other teams fight and was never beaten until the last whistle.

The Team:

Buckley, captain, right guard. "Bill" was a good guard, always, and at times excelled the best, a splendid leader.

Foster, captain-elect, left guard. "Jim" was a steady, reliable player who held his man to few points and scored heavily himself.

Davis, center. "Bob," a great player with a greater future. Without Bob, the team was helpless.

McBrian, left forward. "Beans" was fast, handled the ball well and a sure shot.

Burger, manager, right forward. "Alex" was a fast, steady player; always on the job when needed.

Knight, guard. "Ray" was a clever, reliable player with great endurance.

Green, forward. "Bob," a regular little whirlwind and a dead shot.

Pelton, forward. "Billy," a pest to the other team. "He's little, but he's good."

—————O—————

Spring found us with plenty of money to equip a track team, but we had no place to practice and had no team, so someone else won at Alfred.

The same old story, no suitable place to play, was the reason we had no 'varsity baseball, but the class league has made up for one in the amount of excitement it has furnished. Besides the excitement the league has furnished real baseball for when teams play games with scores of 1-0, 4-1, 6-5, and games in which no errors are committed, they are playing real baseball. Most of us do not know who will win out in the league, but the managers have no doubts.

"While we do not have a slugging team, our steady fielding, hitting and pitching will put us at the top of the league and keep us there."—John Woodruff, Manager Seniors.

"Although the Juniors' outfield is weak, the strong pitching staff and infield together with a "fight to the last ditch" spirit will make the Juniors of much importance in the race for the school championship."—Sheldon Wilson, Manager, Juniors.

"Although the 'Sophs' have been rather unlucky, they never know when they are beaten, and expect to be up near the top when the season closes."—Harold Woodfield, Manager, Sophomores.

"With a great all around team, as good as most high schools, shown by the way we defeated Hinsdale High, the Freshmen should easily win the championship."—Floyd Baker, Manager, Freshmen.

The Class of 20 extends its thanks and congratulations to those who played on last year's teams and wishes next year's and many following teams the best of luck.

of the Olean High School.

A banquet was held at Robie's Tearoom, Wednesday, May 18th, in honor of the Lettermen of 1920. It has been due to the splendid support and co-operation received by the Athletic Association this year that such an event has been participated in for the first time in its history. However, it is hoped that future teams will meet with the same success, thus being enabled to make this an annual affair.

It has been due to the splendid support and co-operation received by the Athletic Association this year that such an event has been participated in for the first time in its history. However, it is hoped that future teams will meet with the same success, thus being enabled to make this an annual affair.

The following men received jerseys for football: Captain Sirdevan, Davis, Barber, Sullivan, Miller, Knight, Burger, Hornung, Trieskey, Degnan, Buckley, Corsett, Sheiterle, Dollard and Casey.

The basketball men who won a gold basket ball for a watch fob were: Captain Buckley, Burger, Davis, Knight, Pelton, Green and McBrien. Robert Kelsey was given a jersey for his faithful work in basketball.

Mr. Sackett, acting Superintendent of Schools, who was the toast-master, first read a letter from Mrs. Franchot, expressing her regret for not being able to attend. Mrs. Franchot has proven a friend in need to the Athletic Association in the past. Mr. Herron, President of the School Board, who because of his absence from the city was unable to be present, sent word that the matter of a gym is being considered.

A number of enjoyable speeches were rendered by Francis Sullivan, President of the Athletic Association; Captains Buckley and Scheiterle, the captains-elect for next year, Foster and Sirdivan, who were followed by Miss Fitzgerald, Mr. Work, Coach Ryan, Miss Driscoll, and Miss Stillman.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. James Fane, a former O. H. S. athlete and member of Cornell's Track Team. Mr. Fane talked on the "Fourteen Points" in athletics.

After the above list of toasts had been completed, Mr. Sackett called upon the President of the Class of 1920, John Fitzgerald, and the three double "O" men; Davis, Burger and Knight, who responded with their usual alertness.

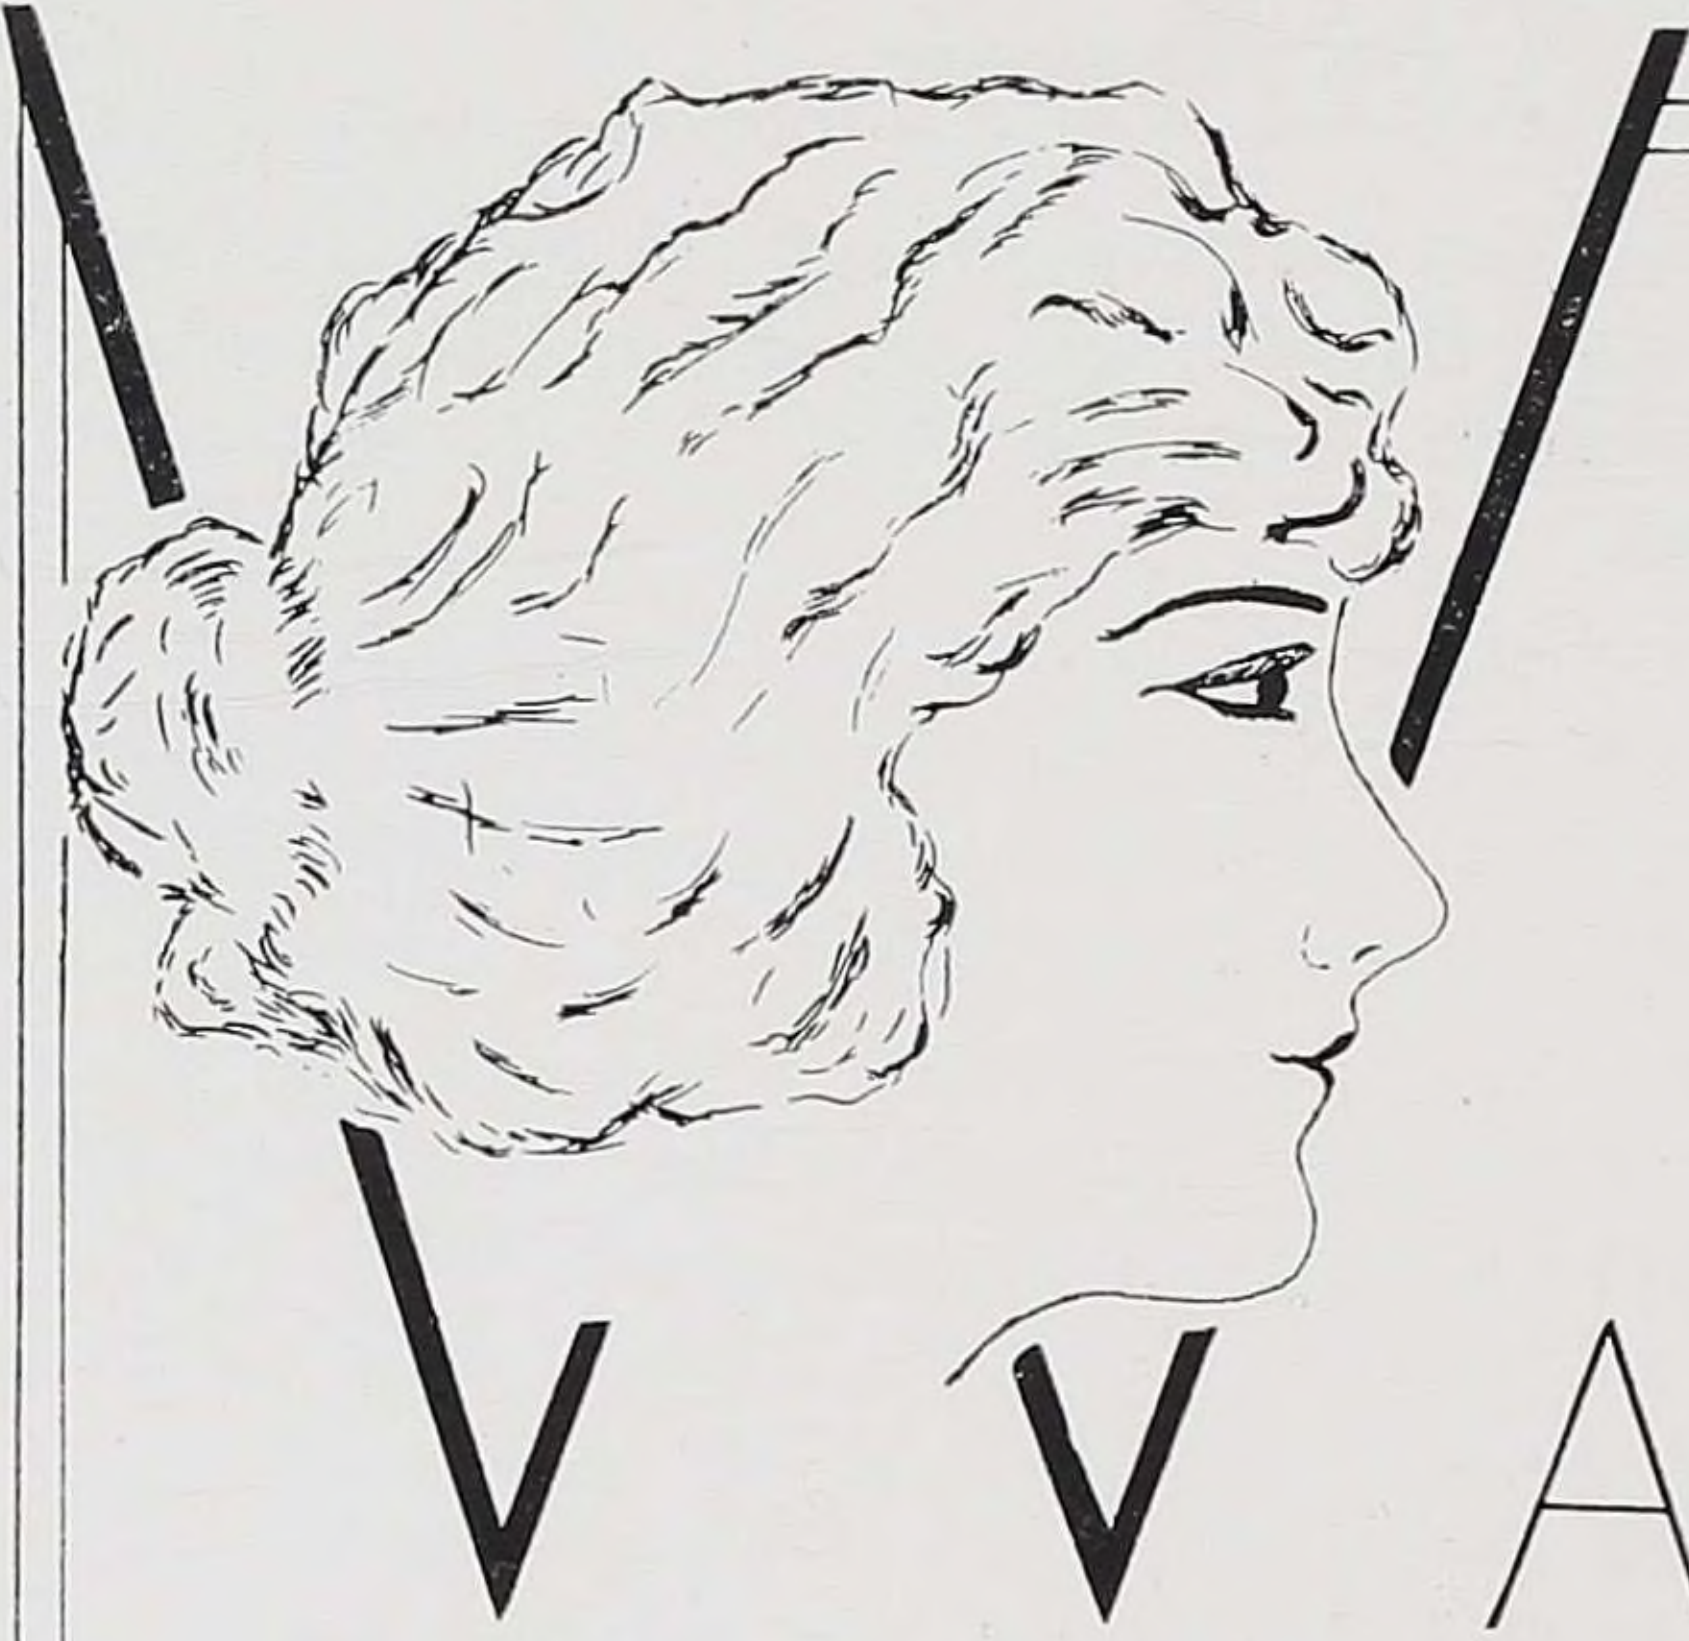

In conclusion the school song was sung and so ended what it is hoped will be the beginning of an annual affair in the Olean High School.

Wayside of 1919—1920.

President Theresa Spiesman, '20
Vice President Laura Duffy, '20
Secretary Evelyn Woodruff, '21
Treasurer Doris Stillman, '21
Faculty Advisors: Misses Lotta B. Hobart and Lena M. Frank.

The Wayside Society of the Olean High School has closed one of its most successful years. As a society, the members have co-operated with the officers and faculty advisors, showing a sincerity of purpose in making each Wayside girl acquainted with and interested in a friendly way with her school-girl associates.

In doing this many social events have been enjoyed. From time to time we have had formal and informal dancing parties, interesting programs, a play and one or two more or less successful sales. Wayside had an especially attractive booth at the Girl's Hiking Club Bazaar.

No doubt the Wayside Spring dance and reception to the cast of the "Man on the Box" was the most entirely satisfactory party ever given by the society. The K. of C. hall was most attractively decorated with Japanese lanterns, fans, parasols and spring flowers. Perhaps the real reason for its being so enjoyable an occasion was due to the fact that the girls had become so well acquainted and so friendly this year that they had learned to be interested in each other's good time. Every guest caught this spirit and all shared alike in the merriment of a delightful party.

Wayside has progressed, and this has happened because of friendly co-operation. As long as this characteristic remains there will be no limit to the real good influence and achievement of our society. We trust that Wayside of future years may strive to carry out this ideal and prove itself as worth while as it has been in the past.

The Girls' Hiking Club.

The Girls' Hiking Club was organized March, 1919, under the direction of Miss Elsa Smith. Every high school girl belonging to the Athletic Association was eligible to membership. This qualification being so simple (only involving twenty-five cents), a large number of girls turned out in the early hours of this March morning for the first hike.

The first year there was a party held in the kindergarten room for all members of the club and at the end of the school year a large banquet was given in the library. Pins were awarded by the Athletic Association to the Senior girls who had hiked forty miles or more during the existence of the club. There were ten girls who received these awards.

Again in the school year of 1919-1920 the Girls' Hiking Club has had a large membership. The bazaar given in the school in April was a success both socially and financially. But seven pins will be awarded this year, as there are not as many Senior girls in the club as there are underclassmen. The Junior class of this year will be awarded seventeen pins next year if they walk the required number of miles (160). This year a five dollar gold piece will be given by Mr. Abrams to the girl who walks the greatest number of miles.

It is the hope of the Senior girls that this club will continue even after better means for athletics have been provided for the girls of the Olean High School.

Red Duffy is a Junior,
 His hair is fiery red;
 And he's the President of his class,
 That's why they are so D-E-A-D.

Brute Flynn is Duffy's right hand man.
 A full-back we are told;
 And every time he hits the line,
 He makes their blood run cold.

Red Dollard is a cute young thing,
 Who would play on the line.
 But he will take no chances,
 When Gervase plays behind. (the side lines).

Ray Hannifan is a wicked flirt,
 But with Knightie stands no chance.
 For Raymond always beats his time
 Because he wears long pants.

Zella Conway Carnahan—What a perfectly insufferable old man!

George Annesley Fitzgerald—Honorable, you? You are a rascal!

Arthur Karloff Barber—Well, I am going to prove myself a great rascal.

Joseph Raleigh Mountain—Now, you wait and I'll add a little vermilion to his character.

Theodore Pierre Hernblom—He haf call me a fat cook!

Marcella Cora Driscoll—I didn't leave him, sir. He went away.

James O'Brien Degnan—Well, I'm thinking——

Milford Martin Buckley—I wish you two fellows would shut up!

Vincent Cassidy Pettit—You'll need a pretty big pull to arrange that.

Donald William Harvison—Oh, Mr. Osborne.

The cast of the Senior play, "The Man on the Box," wishes to take this opportunity to thank publicly those who so kindly and courteously helped in any way to make the play such a success.

During assembly Monday morning, March 15th, a plan was suggested whereby each of the four classes in high school would have the opportunity to conduct an entertainment on its chosen Monday. Lots were drawn and the following is the order in which these Assemblies occurred:

Freshmen—April 19.

Seniors—May 3.

Juniors—May 21.

Sophomores—June 7.

On account of lack of space in this issue we can describe the class assemblies only.

How Dry I Am.

“I know now why they call after dinner talks toasts,” remarked a certain football player at the banquet, as he reached for a glass of water.

Considerate.

The chauffeur was speeding the car along at a great rate. And He and She were nestled coyly in the back seat. After a long silence, he said:

"Are you quite comfortable, dear?"

"Yes, love."

"The cushions are cozy and soft?"

"Yes, darling."

"You don't feel any jolts?"

"No, sweetest one."

"And there is no drought on your back?"

"No, my ownest own."

"Then change seats with me."

COLLEGE OF DENTISTRY

Session of 1920--1921 opens September 20th.

This Institution has been examined by the National Dental Educational Council and given a grade of "A."

A new feature, the Jackson Clinic of Oral Surgery has been equipped and is in full operation. This offers unusual opportunities for the study of dental surgery.

The classes at the Dental School are limited in number, so that each student will have the personal supervision of the professor.

The opportunity for practical training at the chair is unsurpassed. There are over one hundred operating chairs and the clinic is so large that the student may become familiar with every phase of dental practice.

The technic and scientific laboratories are thoroughly up to date and the equipment is modern in every respect.

Preliminary Requirement for the Session of 1920--1921.

The satisfactory completion of a four year course in an approved high school, including one year each of chemistry, physics and biology.

Preliminary Requirement for the Session of 1921--1922.

A dental student certificate may be obtained after January 1, 1921, upon the presentation of satisfactory evidence of the completion of not less than one year of instruction in any approved college of liberal arts and science, after the completion of an approved four year high school course, based upon eight years of elementary preparation. The year of college instruction must be of at least fifteen week hours, including English 3, physics 3, biology 3, and chemistry 3.

The Home Town Spirit

This feeling is latent or active in the heart of every citizen, big or small, young or old, and it seeks expression in many ways.

We believe it can best be developed and made a potent factor for public good by the frequent touch of elbows and interchange of thought.

There are many organizations, religious, civic, social and fraternal, that are serving in this capacity.

The Olean Chamber of Commerce is simply the neighbors organized and its business is to help them do the things they want done for the betterment of the whole city.

A. E. EWING, President.

E. W. FITZGERALD, Secretary.
